

Small Animal Building No. 1

Herrick Archives Number 212

A. IDENTIFICATION & LOCATION

1. Name

1.1 Building was never officially named by Board of Trustees.

1.2 Alternate names noted:

Small Animal House

Storage Building (Veterinary Clinic)

Isolation Building (Veterinary Clinic)

2. Location

2.1 Located at 302 West Seventeenth Avenue (arbitrarily assigned for indexing purposes).

For identification of other buildings shown, see Appendix A.

2.2 On January 28, 1929 Cabinet directed that Building H 212 be moved to a new location at rear of the Veterinary Clinic (H 206). Presumably, the small animal operation had been transferred to the recently completed Building 081 west of the river. See report on Building H 206 for new location of Building H 212.

3. General Description

3.1 Type of construction:

Brick, fire-resistive construction (McC 4:270)

3.2 No. of stories:

One story and high basement (McC 3:53)

3.3 Increments of construction:

No additions

3.4 Area of building:

No record found. Small scale floor plans of Veterinary Clinic (H 206) revised December 20, 1941 show exterior dimensions approximately 23' x 54', which would give a ground coverage of approximately 1242 sq.ft.

3.5 Volume of building:

17,860 cu.ft. (McC 4:8A). With a ground coverage of 1242 sq.ft., it would require only 14.38 ft. in height to produce this volume. The 17,860 cu.ft. is, therefore, probably in error.

B. PLANNING & CONSTRUCTION

1. On August 13, 1915 the Board of Trustees reviewed preliminary plans prepared by Joseph N. Bradford. The Secretary was directed to solicit bids and award the contract.
2. Bids were received on October 12, 1915 by Cabinet.
3. On October 19, 1915 Bradford reported to Cabinet that the contract had been awarded to H.C. McCord on the basis of cost plus 10%.
4. On February 29, 1916 McCracken reported to Cabinet that the building was ready for use.

C. COST

$ 3,992.44 (McC 4:270)
